About the Author: Eddy Savage

Eddy Savage has been immersed in the world of Canada's wild bears for over 15 years. He leads bear viewing expeditions to find black bears, grizzly bears, and polar bears across Canada. He has spent thousands of hours tracking bear evidence through dense rainforests, scouting rarely visited habitat for scent marking trees, cruising coastal estuaries via zodiac and small boat, waiting patiently in viewing hides, and exploring the arctic tundra in specialized vehicles, all with his camera and notebook in hand. He is in the field five months a year. Separately, he offers photography workshops, webinars, blog and article writing, podcast interviews, and custom fine art prints. Eddy is passionate about bears and bear conservation and through his writing, photography, and outreach, aims to share his perspective on the true nature of wild bears with readers from around the world.
